Invincible numbers,
Lads, are ours in the heaven:
Nine are the Muses
And the Pleiades are Seven.

Who shall disband them —
The Golden, dreaming together?
Who can unlink them —
The Silver Seven, in tether?

What they may hold for us
All, is not for our knowing,
But the light of their timeless
Eyes, is undimmed in its glowing;

And where the old moon
Wanes, and the tide turns shoreward,
Over the deepening
Waters they beacon us forward

To our own adventurous
Youth, no waning encumbers:
Golden with silver
Enwreathing our radiant Numbers —

PREFACE

Classmates:

THE replies which you have sent to me in response to the questionnaire mailed to you in February indicate the truth of the old saying that 'No news is good news.' The period of middle life does not offer the contrasts, the opportunities, or the striking accomplishments which come to some of us in younger days, and so it has not seemed wise to attempt in this report more than a brief summary of addresses and such additions to the '97 Family as have occurred since the last Report and to give the names of those members of the class who have passed away.

To a number of our classmates has come great distinction; to many, fine accomplishments and unusual success; to the majority, a satisfaction and contentment in life. I will not venture to indicate by name any of our members in this short preface, but if you will all refresh your memories by looking over our last Report, you will find this to be the case.

Our Twenty-Fifth Reunion was the brightest spot in the life of our class, uniting and strengthening the ties which have held us for so many years. With the coming of this Thirtieth celebration, we shall have this recollection before us, and I hope we may take away from it a still deeper feeling for our Alma Mater, for our class, and for our classmates.

NOW AND THEN
FROM THE SECRETARY'S SCRAPBOOK

THE ART OF DINING

DEAR ROG:

Your invitation to write a word on THE ART OF DINING was not answered sooner because I felt a little offended by what I have since learned was a typographical error. Your note said 'di-ing' instead of 'dining,' and you know you never were a very good speller, so I thought it was 'writ sarcastic' like Artemus Ward, and referred to my professional record. I don't know anything about dying — but let that go. To return to the matter of dining.

Yes, I think it ought to be considered rather soberly. We aren't what we were thirty years ago. Do you remember rushing down to Herbie Foster's at 8.57 A.M., grabbing a mug of coffee and a ham sandwich which Herbie had autographed with his finger print on the mustard, and beating it over to Appleton Chapel and just getting in under the wire? Dear old Appleton — now they're going to tear it down and build a — but I mustn't give that away, as I am the only one that knows.

But I must get back to dining. I should call it more of a Science now than an Art. In the first place you don't eat just plain food any more — not food like caviare and pâté de foie gras — but you are given carbohydrates, proteids, and lipoids, and they jolly well have to be in the right proportion, too, or you're liable to cash in. Speaking of cashing in, what is this I hear about the Class of '96 having a lower death rate than ours? It can't be true. They were mostly half-dead, anyway, back in '96. Of course, they were usually pretty well pickled, and may have been preserved in that way — or got kind of dried up and mummified like Tut-ank-hamen. I thought I saw one of them the other day on State Street, corner of Congress, selling pencils. Gannett and Forbes coming from their offices met at the corner just at that moment, and he tried to sell them one. Stubby said he did not need one, because the State Street Trust Company's depositors were required to bring their own. Finally they matched and Tom had to give him a nickel.

But I must get back to the matter of dining. The next thing you have to think of is — am I getting enough calories with my food? Without calories, the wife might as well send for an undertaker. I knew a man once — not a bad sort either — who didn't get enough calories and became a total loss above the eyebrows — had horrible dreams and hallucinations, thought he was an Eli and sang 'Boola Boola,' and then he'd have a fit of weeping about Old Nassau — it was terrible. We gave him calories — about four fingers at bedtime — and he came back all right, but it was a close shave.

But I was discussing the matter of dining. The most important thing of all to get with your foods are the Vitamins. You must have Vitamins. They are what keep your glands busy — not the way you think — I mean, the thyroid and all the rest of them. If you keep rabbits and guinea pigs from having Vitamins in their food, they give up family life, and eschew each other's society (I got that in English 22), and sit in opposite corners with their fur pointing North instead of South and look cross-eyed at each other. Instead of having rabbits and guinea pigs to give away, you have to buy more if you want them. I told Gus Parker, Chairman of the Dinner Committee, about this, and he said not to worry.

But to get back to the dinner. It's awfully important not to get nervously or emotionally upset while you're dining. If you do, the blood leaves little Mary to attend to her duties alone, and seeks the brain, and in some men this is so hopeless it just gets tuckered out and stops running. Speaking of emotion reminds me of Percy — is he going to give us a poem this year? I suppose if he has conceived one he will have to be delivered of it at the dinner, but can't the Committee do something about his hair? Back at our Twenty-Fifth Reunion it was so long that it got wrapped around his tonsils and choked him, and made some perfectly good sob-stuff sound like a steam calliope. If the Committee could only stick it down with Oilzum (or is it Slikum? — one is for your transmission and the other for your hair, but either would do), I think the boys would all be grateful.

But we were talking about the dinner. Extreme consternation or surprise act like other emotions on the digestion and so I think the Class ought to know beforehand that we are going to hear from the Class Day officers; Bob Stevenson has the principal address on ALMA MATER — GOD BLESS HER, Edgar Wrightington will speak on SELLING EDUCATION TO THE UNDERGRADUATES, Jim Dean on LOOKING BACKWARD, OR THIRTY YEARS AFTER, and Bob Olds is going to yodel! A timely discussion will be a joint debate between T. Lyman and Inky Bowditch on FLAMING YOUTH — WHY DOES SHE REVOLT? But I mustn't give away any more of these good things.

But to get back to the matter of dining — I think I've said enough to indicate that we are going to be well looked after. Oh, one thing, more, there'll be a well-organized first-aid and casualty clearing station supervised by a classmate whose name is familiar to us all by his slogan: 'If Nature won't, Nat Wood will.'

Well, good-bye, Rog.

Yours

'Doc'

The Secretary Bird — an aberrant bird of prey . . . is much valued, and officially protected on account of the readiness with which it kills poisonous snakes and other noxious animals by means of its powerful feet.

The Everyman Encyclopedia

I say — a little easy with the snaffle there —
She ain't no 'Satrap,' lad, nor 'Man o' War'!
If I were you, I'd be a little ca'ful there —
She's pasture-soft, and kind o' stiff, 'n' sore.

• • • • • • •

Come, Pegasus, old girl, let's take it easy —
Don't try no bi-plane bus'ness with your wings;
My tummy's kind o' ticklish, an' queasy —
No paper hoops, to-day, nor fiery rings!

When old MacKaye, or Choate, was in the saddle
The horsemanship was sensible and sound —
No free-rein highfalutin and skedaddle —
No bailiff had to put you in the pound.

And that was thirty years ago, God love you!
We used to soar a bit in Ninety-Seven —
The earth below — the blue sky just above you —
The gates ajar — and just a breath of Heaven.

In those days Cheever never spoke of 'diet,'
Nor Scannell murmur 'blood-pressure' — and frown;
And Cornwell didn't talk of 'rest' and 'quiet,'
And Binney didn't 'keep his tummy down.'

We'd stoke up on Memorial's 'iron-ration' —
Then beat it to the boat-house for a row,
Or run — in B.V.D.s — to Porter's Station —
Come rain or shine, in slush or sleet or snow.

We never even thought of indigestion —
We didn't know a liver from a lung —
A kidney was a thing we didn't question —
— Ah, classmates! To be back again — and young!

Yes, back again, to good old 'Holmes' and 'Jarvis,'
Perched on the wooden bleachers round 'the track' —
To see old Charlie Paine — that rara avis —
Hold up a game to whistle plover back.

To watch old Evan Hollister in action,
With Vincent, Phillips, 'Bonaparte,' and 'Buck.'
And what a solid sense of satisfaction
When 'Bob' and 'John' and 'Edgar' ran amuck.

• • • • •

The college yard — at vespers — in the twilight,
With Hollis — Stoughton — Holworthy — in shade;
The face of University in high light —
The elms — the weaving tapestries they made —
The white of flannels — sudden spurt of matches —
The lamp-beams from the windows overhead —
The bursts of laughter — bits of songs and snatches —
The strident call: 'Oh, Carpenter!' — 'Oh, Ned!'

• • • • •

The faces in the mist — they smile so lovingly —
'Stan' Hollister — 'Bill' Saunders — Herbert Schurz —
That we, in turn, should smile — lest they, reprovingly,
Look sad. The happy memory never hurts.
Our classmates — they were legion, should we name them all —
Dear, loyal friends, and comrades of our youth —
'Tis Ninety-Seven's privilege to claim them all —
They lived, and died, for 'Veritas' — for Truth.

• • • • •

The circle narrows, as each year swings round again —
Shoulder to shoulder then, and hand to hand —
Tighten the ranks, and let the bugle sound again —
Parted we fall — united still we stand!

• • • • •

Come, Pegasus, old bird, the sun's a-slanting —
I guess we'd better tumble back to earth.
No 'tail-spins,' now — no fancy gallivanting —
Let's both of us be mindful of our girth.

We've passed, I'm glad to say, our 'roaring forties'
With little apprehension and concern,
And now to fear the fifties — why, the thought is Enough to cause an Immermann to turn.

But Peg, this ain't no 'flivver-plane' chug-chuggy ride —
Just pick some soft and easy landing spot —

• • • • • • • •

So, Peggy dear, I thank you for the buggy-ride —
Or, as the children phrase it, 'Thanks a lot!'

• • • • • • • •

... Just a closing, warning word,
To that Secretary Bird:
I shall hang the Jolly Roger in the morning!

HUMPHREY TURNER NICHOLS

EXCERPTS FROM THE DIARY OF
A. BOOB, '97
DAMPER, FLORIDA

February 22. Made the twenty-fifth 100 per cent and was all set for the thirtieth when Roger Scaife pulled this grandchildren stuff in his questionnaire. What does he mean? Grandchildren!! Apparently, I am too damned old for reuning — anyhow, am sore!!! Shall write Scaife handing him one.

March 17. Been figuring up and could be done if not backward — Still sore, however.

April 1, 9 A.M. Letter from Scaife saying meant nothing personal. Still don't think will go. Too much prohibition. Think will send first-born male grandchild Columbia as public protest — sort of human sacrifice to Old Nick Murray Butler.

April 1, 9 P.M. Decided send grandchild Holy Cross — more sensational.

April 2, 9 A.M. Changed mind about grandchild. Shall send him to Yale. If sacrifice to be made, why not go the limit?

April 2, 9 P.M. Settled on Princeton for grandchild.

April 18. Helped the twins jointly, severally and simultaneously in arithmetic, Latin, French, and English — could not remember square root, conjugations (Latin or French) or parts of speech. These being the matters then under consideration, situation became awkward and children seemed to lose confidence and attitude became almost disrespectful — think can bear up if never have any grandchildren.

April 19. Another notice from Scaife and mind being turned to the East thereby, read John Speed's description of New England and New York (1676). Think better copy for defensive use against cracks about great open spaces, God's country, red blood, etc., in case should go. Describing attitude of Mother Country towards travel plans of revered Pilgrims, he says,

‘When at length upon consideration of the little losf, but rather benefit, the absence of persons so disaffected and uncomfortable would be to the Kingdom . . . free liberty was granted for their transportation.’

And this is how he sizes up New Yorkers,

'The nature and complexion of the native inhabitants differ not much from those of the Floridans . . . They observe no set meals, but eat as oft as their appetite ferves: . . . Men turn away their wives upon the least occasion imaginable, and marry again. . . . The women wear a coat that reaches half way down their legs . . . yet they acknowledge a God, who, living in profound blifs, not troubling himself with humane affairs, folaceth himself with a Goddef of most surpaffing beauty. . . . Moreover, they believe that the souls of those that have lived well here are transplanted after their decease to some Southern Clime, where they live in utmost pleasure and delight.'

May Day. Finally decided to attend thirtieth — shall stop over in New York. Feel Floridans have fallen away from early traditions — must restore old standards — may be something in the grandchildren stuff — shall drop in on Parkhurst and Depew. Never heard of Pilgrim Grandfathers — probably grandchildren had them killed off by friendly Indians. Shall send grandchild to Harvard Divinity School. Mustn't take any chances. Good boy, Scaife — always liked him!

A TRIBUTE FROM NEW YORK

THE principal contribution of the 1922 reunion to the education of some of the class was its evidence of how much better Boston is close at hand than at a distance. The persistence with which the Hub twirls within its own narrow circumference instead of, like all other American communities, aspiring to be a second-rate New York, profoundly irritates those of us who regard metropolitan flesh-pots, with all their faults, as superior to Puritan ideals with all their virtues. There are many loyal Harvard men who regard Harvard, with its happily broadening racial constituency, as more likely to save Boston in the end than itself permanently to reflect seventeenth-century tradition. Yet how impute intolerance to those who did so much more than merely tolerate the outlander? — who showed that they had merely been waiting for a suitable occasion to open to us their hearts and homes? — who proved that, in point of cordiality, Boston men are excelled only by Boston women? — who organized their welcome so efficiently that no trace of organization appeared, but each one of us was made to feel that for twenty-five years our personal advent had been specially and anxiously awaited? Boston is a heap better when you know it than when you don't. It provides a more fruitful field for scientific study and social research, in the topic 'genuine hospitality,' than any community in the land. Perhaps some day it will even achieve patience and understanding of those who, in season and out of season, insist upon poking fun at some of its most cherished peculiarities. It will ask itself who originated the nauseous idea with which, through Harvard influence, so many have become indoctrinated: that it is a weakness to feel affection, and a crime to show it. It will recognize that Harvard is the feeding-bottle, but Boston itself the cow, that has poisoned America in this particular.

ALFRED Z. REED

A MESSAGE FROM CHICAGO

DEAR ROGE:

The Tri-Decennial Reunion must have certain pathological characteristics which are not without influence on our distinguished Class Secretary, for in no other manner can your request be explained that I go on record for Harvard '97.

With a retrospect of thirty years, the question naturally arises, was the four-year period spent by us at Harvard worth while, and if so, why? I wonder how many of us who are not professional men, if called on to give our reasons why we love Harvard, would be able to make specific replies which would satisfy a youngster seeking a college education.

My own notion is that an answer lies in referring to our first Triennial Reunion, and the recollection of the emotions of joy and pride which characterized this first formal meeting of our class after graduation. The same reactions mount by geometrical ratio as the years go by. I believe we exemplify one of the main advantages of a college education, because as we grow older we are drawn together by the attraction of a common impulse, our allegiance to Harvard.

MEMBERS OF THE CLASS

The superior figures 2, 3, 4 indicate that student joined the Class Sophomore Year, Junior Year, or Senior Year, respectively. § Indicates member of Graduate School who took degree of A.B. with Class. † Denotes member of Class who completed course in three years and received degree of A.B. in regular course after a year's leave of absence. In every case where a degree 'As of 1897' was received out of course, the date upon which the degree was actually conferred is given in parentheses. Unless the capital letters indicating a degree are followed by the name of some institution those letters signify a degree conferred by Harvard. *Deceased.

OBITUARIES

HAROLD BARCLAY

A SENSITIVE youth with a burden of great personal charm and family tradition; a middle phase when the dominant and obvious traits were battling with those recessive and scarcely realized; a victory for the latter and a fine and useful life. Such is the history of Harold Barclay. Death on the beach at Biarritz, July 25, 1922, deprived us of the fourth chapter on which we ourselves are entering.

It was early in the second phase of Barclay's life that Harvard knew him, and little more than a glimpse it was, for he left us at the end of his freshman year to enter the College of Physicians and Surgeons in New York City.

Except for the short three months of the Spanish War, when Barclay was a trooper with General Miles's army in Porto Rico, he kept closely to his work, receiving his degree with the class of 1899.

After that followed a two-year internship at Bellevue, and at some time in that period the third phase of his life began.

An association with Dr. George W. Lockwood, a well-known specialist in diseases of the stomach and abdomen, led to Barclay's choice of that branch of the profession of medicine and in it he achieved great success, and became one of the foremost specialists in those diseases.

In the late War, in spite of a great risk from a weak heart, Harold went to France early in July, 1917, with Base Hospital 15, as a captain in the Medical Service; receiving his majority, he was assigned to the 42d Division (Rainbow) as medical consultant and eventually became a Lieutenant-Colonel and returned to the United States.

Barclay's war service was very active. Everything he undertook he did intensely or not at all. There was a fine vein of romance, and life was an adventure, a horse to ride, perhaps, but he must ride it in his own way.

F. G. G.

GEORGE BENSON

GEORGE BENSON died at Olympia, Washington, March 20, 1926. He was the son of Emery King Benson and Ruth Ellen Benson, and was born in Salem, Massachusetts, June 5, 1874. He attended Browne and Nichols's School and St. Mark's School, where he played on both the football and the baseball teams, and entered Harvard with the class of 1897.

After spending several months in business in Japan, Benson returned to the Pacific Coast in 1896 and engaged in civil and consulting engineering in Alaska, California, and the Pacific Northwest. He settled in Olympia, Washington, where, in addition to his own business, he was employed in different state departments, and was finally made City Engineer. During the war he served as Chief Engineer in connection with the Spruce Division for airplanes. On February 12, 1910, he was married to Miss Lillian Shaw, who died in January, 1926.

George Benson's friendships among his classmates, no less than those formed later, bear eloquent testimony to an intensely attractive personality, an unusually keen sense of humor, and an optimistic and affectionate nature. In one of his Class Reports he says that he was the 'somewhat bald' catcher on a Pacific Coast Harvard team which played a similar Yale aggregation regularly, 'and generally licked them.'

ALFRED HENRY CHILDS

ALFRED HENRY CHILDS was born at Deerfield, Massachusetts, on February 29, 1876, the son of Henry Seymour and Lucy Esther (Grout) Childs. He prepared for college at the Dickinson High School in Deerfield and entered Harvard in '93 graduating with the degree of A.B. in '97. After leaving college he took the regular course in the Harvard Medical School, 1897-1901, and served as House Officer at the Boston City Hospital, his first medical service, being from 1901 to 1903.

In the spring of 1903 he moved to Dublin, New Hampshire, where he practiced medicine not only among the townspeople, but among the large permanent summer colony as well until his death on April 29, 1922.

Childs held various positions of public trust in Dublin where he was greatly beloved.

In 1903 he married Lucy Anna Eastman, of Deerfield, Massachusetts, who survives him.

HERBERT CERDÁ DE VILARRESTAU CORNWELL

DR. HERBERT C. DE V. CORNWELL, formerly a Lieutenant Colonel in the United States Army Medical Corps, who served with the A.E.F. in France, died on April 25, 1927, of Bright's disease at his home in Scarsdale, New York, after an illness of more than a year. He was 52 years old on April 7.

Cornwell was graduated from Harvard with the Class of '97 and received his degree of M.D. from the Harvard Medical School three years later. He was commissioned a Captain in the Army Medical Corps in June, 1917, and detailed to the Officers' Training Camp at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Indiana. Later he was assigned to the 316th Infantry, Seventy-Ninth Division, and in November, 1917, was promoted to the rank of Major.

He sailed on July 9, 1918, for France, where he was cited twice for heroic service. His wife was apprised of his valor in a letter from Maud Ballington Booth, of the Volunteers of America, who had been told of Dr. Cornwell's bravery by the men of his regiment while she was visiting the regiment's headquarters. Major Cornwell was made a Lieutenant Colonel in April, 1919, returned to this country in the next month, and was discharged a few weeks later.

Cornwell was the son of Captain Charles C. Cornwell, who died about thirty years ago, and Mrs. Cornwell, the former Miss Sol Cerdá de Vilarrestau, who survives him. He leaves also a widow, the former Miss Dalia Orozco.

Cornwell's was one of those quiet, persistent personalities which win equally lasting friendship and lasting respect, and those of his classmates who remember him will recognize the service which he has given to his work in both peace and war, and will treasure his memory among the priceless possessions of '97.

ROBERT CHARLES DAVIS

ROBERT CHARLES DAVIS, Law '97-00, A.M. '00, died at Providence, Rhode Island, February 18, 1926. After leaving the Law School, he took up practice as a member of the firm of Jackson, Slade & Borden, in Fall River, Massachusetts. He soon became interested in business matters, and in 1907 he abandoned the practice of law and devoted his time to his own affairs and to estates which had been placed in his hands. During the War, Davis was chairman of the Fall River Public Safety Committee, chief of Volunteer Division of the U.S. Secret Service for Southeastern Massachusetts, and chief of the American Protective League for the same district. He was vice-president of the Stafford Mills and a director in the Wampanoag, Luther, and Cornell Manufacturing Companies. He was the first president of the Fall River Chamber of Commerce, for several years president of the Fall River Anti-Tuberculosis Society, and active in other charitable enterprises. In 1900 he was married to Miss Edith Braw, of Fall River, who died in 1922. He subsequently moved to Providence, and in 1924 married Miss Bertha Borden, of Fall River, who survives.

EDMUND VICTOR DEXTER

EDMUND VICTOR DEXTER was born at Cincinnati, Ohio, August 31, 1874. He was the son of Edmund Dexter and Emma Rowcroft. He died at Bronxville, New York, on October 25, 1924. After preparing at Wilson and Kellogg School he entered Harvard College in the fall of 1893 and took his Bachelor's degree in 1897. From his mother he inherited a marked musical gift. He was a member of the University Glee Club. During his Junior and Senior years he rowed on his Class Crew. Shortly after graduation Dexter bent himself to the railroad business. His first service was with the Cincinnati, New Orleans and Texas Pacific Railway Company. He soon attracted the attention of its president, Samuel M. Felton. In December, 1910, he followed his chief to the Chicago and Alton Railway Company. He was assigned to the agency of fuel supply with headquarters at Bloomington, Illinois. There he met Miss Louise Weldon Ewing, who became his wife on November 21, 1903. Although no children blessed this union, it was unusually happy. Meanwhile, he had been promoted to the position of purchasing agent of the Chicago and Alton with headquarters at Chicago. Five happy and successful years followed. Then Mr. Felton went to Mexico City to take charge of the Mexico Central and Dexter again followed him. Under their skillful hands the Mexico Central prospered so well that it was taken over by the Government in 1909. Dexter greatly enjoyed his Mexican experience. The country fascinated him and he found time to travel over much of it. From the fall of 1909 to that of 1915 he was associated with the Waters-Pierce Oil Company of St. Louis as manager of its railroad department. Then he joined the munition department of the American Can Company and served throughout the War. When the United States declared war he moved his office to Washington. After the armistice he had charge of the sale of the American Can Company's ammunition plants and equipment. This he completed in 1921. Thereafter until his fatal illness he managed the business affairs of members of his family. Dexter's business career was active and successful, but in his domestic life and his friendships he achieved his greatest success. His honesty and sincerity were so transparent, his temperament so abounding with good nature and affection that every one who knew him well loved him. He will be sadly missed. His life has taught anew that a great and simple heart is man's most precious gift.

W. B.

CARL STEPHEN DOW

CARL STEPHEN Dow died at Worcester, Massachusetts, June 9, 1915. He had been for many years in the advertising business. He was for a time publicity manager for the B. F. Sturtevant Company, Boston, makers of blowers, fans, etc., and later of the Lamson Company, Boston, manufacturers of pneumatic tubes; he was subsequently with Walter B. Snow and then with the Spofford Company, advertising agents in Boston. For a few years immediately after his graduation he gave instruction in engineering in the correspondence department of the Armour Institute of Technology, Chicago. His studies in college, where he took the degree of S.B., and his experience in teaching and with the Sturtevant Company, equipped him to write on engineering subjects, and he was editor-in-chief of 'Practical Mechanical Engineering,' a three-volume cyclopedia, published in Philadelphia, joint author of the 'Starett Book for Machinists' Apprentices,' and had contributed a series of eight articles on American engineering to the Chautauqua Magazine. In 1900 he married Miss Eva Eulalia Strout. They had one daughter.

MORSE STEWART DUFFIELD

Professor James said of MORSE STEWART DUFFIELD during his college course that he possessed one of the finest student minds with which he had ever come in contact. Duffield himself planned, on leaving college, to carry on his studies in philosophy, and as money was required to carry out his intentions, he went to the Klondike in the summer of '97 with the hope and expectation of securing a sufficient sum quickly.

He remained in Alaska for four years, but made no strike. His failure turned the current of his life. He returned to Alaska and in all passed eight years there, learning much of mining and engineering, but never able to carry out the dreams of his youth.

Later, returning to the States, he located a large body of valuable phosphate, in the three States of Wyoming, Utah, and Idaho, carrying on the litigation relating to these properties through the United States Courts, with an unbroken line of victories, to the Supreme Court in Washington. His legal adviser strongly recommended him to study the law because of his evident legal talents.

While in Utah he met his wife, Alice Greer, at Provo. She was the youngest daughter of an old non-polygamous Elder of the Mormon Church, but she later became and still is an ardent Christian Scientist. Morse then came to anchor in Salt Lake City after his many wanderings and here his three children who survive him were born — Divie Bethune, Marshall Dixon, and Harriet Frances. Marshall was named for an old friend of his father's Alaskan days — Marshall Scott Litchfield, of Maine, who is still living in Santa Monica. Morse's married life was exceptionally happy and he was singularly companionable with all three of his children to whom he must have given generously of his big-hearted, broad-souled nature which so endeared him to so many of his classmates.

In 1915 Duffield suddenly decided to change his home to Southern California. During the Great War he tried in every way to enlist, but his great weight at that time (260 pounds) barred him. However, determined to do something to further the cause, he went to work in a shipyard, at that time constructing ships for the Government, and was soon in charge of a gang of men placing boilers and machinery in newly constructed ships, returning at the close of the War to Santa Monica.

In January last he developed acute diabetes and was taken to a hospital in Los Angeles for insulin treatment to which he quickly responded, until he suddenly developed pneumonia, dying on January 13, 1925.

FRED VICTOR EDGELL

BORN: at Chester, Vermont, Jan. 21, 1870. Son of Dexter Aaron and Annette Almira (Howe) Edgell.

SCHOOL: Bellows Falls High School, Bellows Falls, Vermont.

YEARS IN COLLEGE: 1893-98. S.B. 1898.

UNMARRIED.

DIED: April 18, 1925.

FRED VICTOR EDGELL died on April 18, 1925. As he stated five years ago that he wished to be socially affiliated with the Class of '98, no obituary notice is given here.

BERTRAM GARDNER

BERTRAM GARDNER was born at Brooklyn, New York, on November 4, 1871. He was the son of Alfred Hussey Gardner and Emily Augusta Atwater. After preparing at St. Paul's School, Garden City, he entered Harvard College in 1893 as a regular member of the Class of 1897. During his undergraduate days he decided to practice law in New York. Armed with his Bachelor's degree he entered the New York Law School in the fall of 1897. He became an LL.B. and a member of the New York Bar in 1899. He began practice in New York, and soon extended it to Nassau County, Long Island.

On May 7, 1904, Gardner married Gardina Greenleaf Yvelin, of Garden City, Long Island. There were two children born to them — Yvelin on July 12, 1906, and Ruth on January 21, 1912.

A Democrat by inheritance, he became active in the affairs of his party in 1912. From 1914 to 1918 he represented Nassau County on the Democratic State Committee. He was successively Chief Deputy Collector, Acting Collector, and Collector of Internal Revenue for the First New York District during the period between November, 1916, and July, 1921. On resigning the collectorship he returned to private practice with special attention to tax matters. He accepted the presidency of National Tax Consultants, Inc., and held office until his death on June 11, 1924. He is survived by his widow and children.

Gardner was a very useful member of his profession and of the community in which he lived. He was a director of the Citizens' National Bank of Freeport and a member of the Advisory Board of Long Island Bankers. To the exacting duties of Collector of Internal Revenue he brought courtesy, industry, and ability. Would that all collectors were like him! In prompt and accurate dispatch of business he made a record that will not soon be equaled.

Gardner's personality was quiet and forceful. His life was a record of faithful service. Thus is the Benign Mother justified of her sons.

W. B.

ELIZUR KIRKE HART

ELIZUR KIRKE HART, the son of Elizur Kirke and Louise (Sanderson) Hart, died January 1, 1923, at Albion, New York.

Hart was affiliated with the class in 1893-95, when he left to take a position as bookkeeper in the Orleans County National Bank at Albion, New York, where he was born. He eventually became a director, and, in 1920, the largest stockholder, of this institution, retiring from active business at that time. During the War he was active on Liberty Loan and Red Cross committees.

In 1904 he married Elizabeth Beckwith Keeney, who survives him, as do his children, Elizur Kirke, Jr., William Beckwith, and Elizabeth Keeney Hart, Jr.

JAMES EDWARD HERO

JAMES EDWARD HERO, who spent one year in Cambridge as a member of the class of '97, died in Houston, Texas, December 22, 1925.

After leaving college he entered the Fulton Bag and Cotton Mills where he was employed as auditor attached to various offices of the company, and finally transferred to Houston, Texas, where in 1914 he severed his connection with the Fulton Company and joined the Overland-Houston Company for Southeast Texas. In 1918 he organized the Houston Motor Truck Company and became its president.

JOHN HUDSON HOLLIS

JOHN HUDSON HOLLIS, Harvard '97, who died on May 2, 1926, following a cerebral hemorrhage, was a special student from September, 1893, to June, 1897. He was born in Lynn, Massachusetts, on October 11, 1873, the son of the late Samuel Johnson Hollis and Elizabeth Olivia (Hudson) Hollis. On April 21, 1904, he married Bertha Poole Chase, who, with their children, John Hudson Hollis, born August 10, 1905, Edward Poole Hollis, born March 24, 1908, Charles Hilliard Hollis, born July 8, 1912, and Madeline Burrill Hollis, born December 5, 1916, survives him. His brother is Samuel H. Hollis, Harvard '98, also of Lynn.

John Hudson Hollis attended the Noble and Greenough School. From early youth his somewhat impaired vision prevented him from engaging in athletic sports, and at college greatly limited the range of his study. At college he took several courses in music, and throughout his life he greatly enjoyed the piano, at which he was proficient. From 1899 to 1904 he manufactured shoe counters and taps. Thereafter he engaged in the insurance business.

He was a man of absolute integrity in all his business and social relations. He was simple, direct, and genial in manner; he had an unusually keen sense of humor; he was even-tempered, quiet, refined in his tastes and interests. He found recreation in following the development of mechanical inventions and of the natural sciences. His greatest happiness he found in his home, being intensely devoted to his wife and children who were his dear companions. He lived a simple, sweet, straight-forward, honest, and honorable life. He exemplified the best qualities of the long line of his New England ancestors.

R. T. P.

HOWARD ROBARD HUGHES

HOWARD ROBARD HUGHES died at Houston, Texas, January 13, 1924. After leaving college he studied for a while at the law school of Iowa State University and then began the practice of the law. Subsequently he went to Colorado and took up silver mining. In 1901 he went to Texas and gave his attention to the oil business. He invented an oil drill, now widely used, and organized a company, Sharp and Hughes, of Houston, to manufacture it. The firm later became the Hughes Tool Company of which he was president, general manager, and owner. During the War he invented a horizontal boring machine for undermining enemy strongholds and artillery positions. In 1904 he married Miss Allene Gano, who died a few years ago. He is survived by a son and a brother, Rupert Hughes, the well-known author.

FREDERIC WILLIAM JOHNSTON

FREDERIC WILLIAM JOHNSTON died at Santa Barbara, California, on September 12, 1925, from bronchial pneumonia. Johnston was the son of Andrew and Sarah Johnston and was born in New York City August 23, 1873. He was educated at Phillips Exeter Academy. After receiving the degree of A.B. in '97, Johnston entered the Medical School. In the autumn of '99 he suffered a nervous breakdown from which he never recovered. He was never married, and the only work which he was able to do during his invalid life was the writing of short stories, which were published in certain of our American magazines. Johnston is survived by a brother, Harrington Johnston, who is a resident of Santa Barbara, California.

ALLEN HOWE KNAPP

ALLEN HOWE KNAPP died at Springfield, Massachusetts, on January 24, 1927, after an illness of only two days, following a cerebral hemorrhage.

After graduation from college he was principal of the High School in Canton, New York, for three years, and in Portsmouth, New Hampshire, for six years. On leaving Portsmouth he became head of the Mathematics Department of Central High School in Springfield, Massachusetts. He served in this position for nearly twenty-one years.

Knapp did some graduate work at Harvard after his graduation in '97-taking courses in Higher Mathematics. He was active in Masonic Circles for many years, and was Past Master of St. John's Lodge of Portsmouth, New Hampshire. He was for sixteen years a deacon in the South Congregational Church of Springfield. His interest in Harvard was always keen, and he was instrumental in advising and helping many high school boys to enter Harvard College.

At the time of his death he was chairman of the Scholarship Committee of the Connecticut Valley Harvard Club. Knapp left a widow, three children, and two grandchildren.

FRANK FITTS LAMSON

FRANK FITTS LAMSON, D.O. (Massachusetts College of Osteopathy), '16; M.D. (Middlesex College of Medicine and Surgery), died at Newton, Massachusetts, May 24, 1924. After leaving college he worked in a dye-house in Lawrence and was a chemist in the printing department of a cotton mill in Manchester, New Hampshire; he was subsequently made assistant superintendent of the dyeing, bleaching, and chemical department. Early in 1907 he was obliged to resign on account of poor health, but in the fall of that year he entered the employ of the American Mason Safety Tread Company. About ten years ago he took up the study of osteopathy. In 1902 he married Miss Lena Marston Josselyn. They had one daughter.

HENRY TURNER LEE

HENRY TURNER LEE died after a short illness in St. Louis, December 20, 1923. Lee was born in St. Louis in 1872, the son of William Hill and Julia Turner Lee.

He prepared for college at Smith Academy, St. Louis, later going to Georgetown College at Washington. From Georgetown he entered Harvard, where he remained during his freshman year 1893-94. While in Harvard he was a member of the freshman rowing squad.

After leaving college, he engaged in farming and stock-raising in Boone County, Missouri, at the same time taking an active part in the Democratic politics of the State. Although he held no high political office of emolument, declining at one time the nomination for a high state office offered him by his party, he was a delegate for a number of years to all State and Judicial Conventions and in 1904 was a delegate from his Congressional District to the Democratic National Convention. Joseph W. Polk, Governor of Missouri, appointed him a member of his staff with the rank of Brigadier-General.

Later Lee gave up farming and entered upon a business career with the Atlas Portland Cement Company, meeting with much success until an attack of illness forced him to retire.

In 1900 he married Katharine de Hart Patterson. His widow and three children survive him.

Lee's genial personality, broad acquaintance, unquestioned loyalty and genuineness gained for him a large and enduring circle of friends, to whom his death is a grievous loss.

JOHN WILLARD LINCOLN

JOHN WILLARD LINCOLN died after a short illness in New York City on November 7, 1924. He was buried in Deerfield, Massachusetts. Lincoln was at one time with the Livermore Falls Pulp Company of Plymouth, New Hampshire, and later was engaged in the advertising business.

BORN at Hingham, Massachusetts, Oct. 2, 1875. Son of Luther Joshua Barker and Mary Agnes (Fuller) Lincoln.

YEARS IN COLLEGE: 1893-95.

MARRIED: Yes.

DIED in New York City, Nov. 7, 1924.

JOHN MASON LITTLE

JOHN MASON LITTLE, who died at Brookline, Massachusetts, March 23, 1926, was born in Swampscott, Massachusetts, June 7, 1875, the son of John Mason and Helen (Beal) Little. He prepared for Harvard at Noble and Greenough's School. After graduating from the Medical School, Little spent a year in professional study in Vienna and took up practice in Boston in 1903 as assistant to Dr. S. J. Mixter. In 1907 he went with Dr. Grenfell in the latter's summer cruise along the Newfoundland and Labrador coasts, and became so interested in the work that he devoted to it the next ten years of his life. He cruised in the Strathcona, Dr. Grenfell's vessel, in the summer and traveled by dog team in the winter. At St. Anthony Little made his residence and there he gradually developed the hospital which became the central hospital of the Grenfell Mission, to which cases from all parts of the region were sent. In 1911 he married Miss Ruth E. Keese, of Ashburnham, Massachusetts, one of his co-workers in the Mission. In order that his children might have the advantages of education and associations, Little returned in 1917 to Boston and resumed private practice. He became surgeon of the Out-Patients' Department of the Massachusetts General Hospital; assistant visiting surgeon to the Long Island Hospital; examiner for the New England Mutual Life Insurance Company; instructor in the Harvard Medical School; and chief surgeon of the Boston & Albany Railroad. He also maintained his interest in Dr. Grenfell's work, and was president of the New England Grenfell Association, a director of the New York Board of the Grenfell Association, and a member of the International Board of Directors. Little was the author of many articles published in medical journals. He is survived by his widow, six children, a brother, Amos R. Little, '03, and five sisters.

Little had many sterling qualities which endeared him to his numerous friends and classmates, while his untiring efforts to help his fellow beings through his profession gained him the love and respect of those who came under his care.

GEORGE RICHARD LYMAN

GEORGE RICHARD LYMAN died at Baltimore, Maryland, June 7, 1926. He was born in Lee Center, Illinois, December 1, 1871, and after attending Beloit College Academy, he entered Beloit College, from which he was graduated in 1894. He was a member of the Harvard Class of 1897 during the year 1896-97. He was head of the Botany Department at Dartmouth College from 1901 until 1915 and was then for two years pathologist with the Federal Horticultural Board, Washington, D.C. In 1917 he became pathologist in charge of the plant disease survey, U.S. Department of Agriculture. Since 1923 he had been Dean of the West Virginia College of Agriculture. Lyman was the author of various articles and reports on mycology and plant diseases, and had been a fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, a member of the National Research Council, the Botanical Society of America, the American Society of Naturalists, and the Washington Academy of Sciences. In 1903 Lyman married Miss Frances Badger of Amboy, Illinois, who with a daughter, Mavis Katharine, survives him.

CLARENCE SYDNEY MORSE

CLARENCE SYDNEY MORSE died at San Angelo, Texas, April 7, 1924. From 1900 to 1904 he was director of music at a preparatory school at La Plata, Maryland, and organist and choir director at Christ Episcopal Church there. He next went to Lancaster, Texas, and then to Owensboro, Kentucky, where he held directorships in music. In 1906 he went to San Angelo, Texas, where he was for two years director of music at the Collegiate Institute, and organist and musical director at the First Methodist Church. In 1908 he organized the San Angelo School of Music which he directed until his death. He had written a number of musical compositions. He was not married.

ERNEST DENMAN MULFORD

ERNEST DENMAN MULFORD was born October 16, 1875, in Minneapolis, Minnesota, the son of Aaron Denman and Clari Morandi Mulford, and was a direct descendant of the Reverend Jonathan Dickinson, the first president of Princeton University.

After receiving his elementary education in the public schools of Minneapolis, Mulford entered St. Paul's School, at Concord, New Hampshire, and was graduated in 1893. Finishing his Bachelor of Arts course at Harvard University in 1897, he then studied at the New York Law School and received his diploma in 1899. He was admitted to the bar in 1900, but never followed his profession, preferring the real estate business.

Mulford spent his entire life after graduation in Elizabeth, New Jersey, where he was president of the Elizabeth Real Estate Board, director of the Chamber of Commerce, zoning commissioner, president of the City Council and acting mayor. He died suddenly in Elizabeth, New Jersey, on February 9, 1927, as the result of an operation.

Mayor Kenah, of Elizabeth, spoke of Mulford as one of Elizabeth's outstanding citizens, and his death as a severe loss to the city. During his service in public office he was a conscientious official, taking great pride in the city and being ready at all times to advance its interests.

CHARLES JACKSON PAINE

CHARLES JACKSON PAINE, one of the greatest athletes in the Class, died suddenly on August 4, 1926, in Vanceboro, Maine. Paine and his wife had been motoring through New Brunswick and were returning from their holiday when he was seized with a heart attack which proved instantly fatal.

Born in Weston, June 17, 1876, he was the son of General Charles J. Paine, famous yachtsman and owner of the cup-defender Puritan and other racing boats. He graduated from Hopkinson School and then entered Harvard, graduating in the class of 1897. He was one of the best known college baseball pitchers of his day. He was the fifth of a succession of Harvard men. His great-great-grandfather graduated from that institution in 1717, his great-grandfather in 1793, his grandfather in 1827, and his father in 1853.

After leaving college, Paine took up the trusteeship of a number of estates, with offices in the Sears Building. Later, his business interests included lumber, coal, and copper. He was for a time employed by Lee, Higginson & Co., and later became treasurer of St. Mary's Mineral Land Company and president of several subsidiary companies.

Paine is survived by his wife, formerly Mrs. Winifred La Ford, a daughter, Mrs. James Parker of Chelmsford, two sons, Charles J. Paine, Jr., and Roger Lee Paine.

CHARLES BRUNEL PARKER

CHARLES BRUNEL PARKER died at Morsemere, New Jersey, February 8, 1926. He was born in Chelsea, Massachusetts, January 4, 1871. After graduating from the Cambridge High School he entered Harvard with the class of 1897, remaining only until 1894. He was engaged in civil engineering in Cambridge, New York, and Weehawken, New Jersey, and became assistant superintendent, in 1906, of the Hackensack Water Company. In 1899 he was married to Miss Bertha L. McKinnon, of Cambridge, who, with one son, Edward Brunel, survives him.

HARRY CLARKE PLUM

HARRY CLARKE PLUM, rector and principal of St. Faith's School and a member of the class of '97, died on August 10, 1922, at Hulls Cove, Maine, after an illness of several months.

Plum was born August 25, 1871, at Poughkeepsie, New York, son of William Henry and Rachel Sallas (Enoch) Plum. He was graduated from Harvard College with the class of 1897. He served as assistant principal of the High School at Poughkeepsie and later as principal of the High School at Cherry Valley, New York, before being ordained to the diaconate in 1901. Immediately upon his ordination, he became rector of Trinity Church, Granville, where he was advanced to the priesthood by Bishop Doane in 1902. He accepted a call to the rectorship of Christ Church, Kingham, Kansas, in 1903, and later became rector of St. Peter's Church, Minneapolis, Kansas, where he was until 1909, when he returned to the Diocese of Albany and became rector of St. Luke's Church, Mechanicsville, New York. In 1912 Plum was called to become rector and principal of St. Faith's School, Saratoga Springs, Miss Eleanor A. Shackelford then retiring as its active principal.

Under his administration the School achieved high scholastic rank, being a certified school of the Board of Regents of the State of New York, and in 1918 it became an authorized school of the Episcopal Synod of the Province of New York and New Jersey.

In the death of Harry Plum the class has lost a member who was highly esteemed and whose influence was always exerted for the highest good. He leaves a widow and four daughters.

LOUIS SYDNEY BASSFORD ROBINSON

LOUIS SYDNEY BASSFORD ROBINSON died December 19, 1922, while on duty at the U.S. Veterans' Hospital 62, Camp Kearny, California.

After graduation in '97, Robinson spent four years in the Harvard Medical School after which he entered private practice in St. Paul, Minnesota, specializing in tuberculosis. In 1915 he was appointed assistant superintendent to the Minnesota State Sanatorium for Consumptives, and the following year became superintendent of the Nebraska State Hospital for the Tuberculous.

After several years in Nebraska, Robinson entered the Reserve Corps of the Army Medical Department and was assigned to Camp Sherman, Ohio, and later to Camp MacArthur, Texas, from which position he was transferred to Denver and later to Camp Dodge, Iowa, where he secured his discharge in October, 1919, entering Public Health Service.

This new work carried Robinson from the Colorado State College to Whipple Barracks, Arizona, and later to California where he died, holding the rank of Surgeon, Reserve Corps, Public Health Service.

In the 25th Report Robinson shows that his nomadic life was an enjoyable one and, referring to his duties in the West, says: 'Washington has given the keenest of pleasure by assigning me for the past three years to duty in the midst of scenery so grand and beautiful that words cannot express my joy in it. I am serving my country, and I am happy.'

GORHAM ROGERS

GORHAM ROGERS, Harvard '97, died at his home, 71 Monmouth St., Brookline, Massachusetts, December 27, 1926. He was born at Roxbury, Massachusetts, March 27, 1875, the son of Gorham and Elizabeth Forbes (Lothrop) Rogers, and prepared for college at the Roxbury Latin School. For ten years after graduation he was in the wool business in Boston and Manchester, New Hampshire. In April, 1911, he was elected an incorporator and member of the board of trustees of the Eliot Savings Bank, Roxbury, and in 1915 a member of the investment committee. His constant interest in, and unsparing labors for, the success of that institution resulted in his election as president of the bank in October, 1926, only a few weeks before his death. He was treasurer of the First Church in Roxbury, a director of the New England Hospital for Women and Children, a member of the Alumni Council of the Roxbury Latin School, and treasurer of the Roxbury Charitable Society, as well as trustee of various trust funds. He was married on October 8, 1925, to Miss Marion Dary of Roxbury.

A. M. J.

CYRUS PETER MILLER RUMFORD

CYRUS PETER MILLER RUMFORD died at his home in Wilmington, Delaware, on January 31, 1926, after a brief illness, with pneumonia. He had been out of health for some time and had not been actively engaged in business since 1920. His friends in college will remember him as a cheerful, companionable, generous-hearted person, especially talented in music. He was prominent in the Pierian Sodality, and the leader of an orchestra for the giving of chamber concerts. In 1904 he was married to Miss Belle Pickering Johnston of Manchester, New Hampshire, who, with two children, Genevra Caroline and Henry Peterson, 2d, survives him. Every one who knew Rumford was fond of him; and he will be much missed.

J. E. G.

ARTHUR ELDRIDGE SEARS

ARTHUR ELDRIDGE SEARS, who died on April 9, 1924, in Northampton following a long period of ill health, graduated from Harvard University with the class of 1897.

After leaving college, Sears spent two years abroad, in Paris and in Bonn. Returning, he resided for a short period in Philadelphia and later became associated with the Connecticut Railway and Lighting Company of Bridgeport, Connecticut, leaving that firm to enter the concern of Brown, Sharpe & Company of Providence. In April, 1915, he married Theresa Mabel Cook of New York who survives him. Illness forced him to give up business and for a number of years he lived in Colorado.

Sears's kindly, calm, and quiet manner and the personal interest and spirit of helpfulness he invariably showed, won him many friends, while to his family his was a rare devotion and loyalty. He was a man of admirable and exceptional self-control during all the crises of life and his remarkable courage never faltered under difficulties or the depression of illness.

RALPH SIMPKINS

RALPH SIMPKINS died at St. Louis, Missouri, July 1, 1924. He was born November 11, 1874, in St. Louis. He attended Smith Academy there, and was graduated from Harvard College in 1897. Upon his return to St. Louis he entered the employ of the Union Press Brick Company and became secretary-treasurer of the Hydraulic Press Brick Company in 1905 when the two companies were consolidated. In 1908 he married Miss May F. Filley, of St. Louis. In 1909 he became vice-president of the Hydraulic Press Brick Company, in which position he served until his death on July 1, 1924. He is survived by his widow and two children, George, aged 15, and Francis, aged 4.

H. W. S.

STUART PULLMAN WEST

STUART PULLMAN WEST died at his home, 1049 Park Avenue, New York City, February 18, 1927, after a brief illness. He was born in Providence, Rhode Island, son of the late George West and Helen (Pullman) West, a sister of George M. Pullman, founder of the Pullman Company.

Ever since his graduation he had been a financial writer on New York newspapers. Seven years ago West became a member of the financial staff of the Consolidated Press Association through which his despatches were received by newspapers in most of the large cities of the country. He also had a connection with Merrill, Lynch & Co., brokers, of New York City.

In 1902 he married Miss Eliza von B. Zerega, of New York City, who died some years ago, and just before his death he married Mrs. Loren Oldham Cranshaw of Crestwood, New York, who survives him.

RICHARD MERRILL WHITNEY

RICHARD MERRILL WHITNEY died in New York City, August 16, 1924. He entered college in the fall of 1893, receiving his A.B. Degree with the class of 1897.

On leaving college he entered newspaper work and in 1898 served in the Spanish War as second lieutenant in Company C, 6th Missouri Volunteer Infantry, and as provost marshal at Jacksonville and Pablo Beach, Florida. After the Spanish War he returned to St. Louis and newspaper work. As special correspondent he worked in most of the chief cities of the United States as well as abroad. For some years he was Associated Press correspondent at the State Department in Washington, resigning to undertake special investigations of conditions in Mexico. In 1900 Whitney married Miss Mary Pierce Johnson, of Manchester, New Hampshire.

STILLMAN PIERCE WILLIAMS

STILLMAN PIERCE WILLIAMS died of pneumonia at his home in Winchester, Massachusetts, on January 18, 1925, after a brief illness. He was the son of the late Robert B. Williams and Mary E. (Pierce) Williams, and was born in Boston, May 27, 1874. He graduated from the Roxbury Latin School in 1893. After graduating from college, he was associated for a number of years with his father in the importation of tea, but later retired from that business and devoted himself principally to the care and management of trust estates. He was a director in the Commercial Wharf Company and the Granite Railway Company, a proprietor of the Boston Pier or the Long Wharf, a trustee of the Winchester Savings Bank, vice-president of the Winchester Home for Aged People, a trustee of the Winchester Unitarian Church, and for several years a member of the Winchester School Board. He was a member of the Harvard Club of Boston, the Harvard Union, the Appalachian Mountain Club, and the Winchester Country Club. In 1906 he married Frances Ropes, of Salem, who survives him with four children, Constance, Robert B., Stillman P., Jr., and Louisa K. Williams. Those who knew Williams best realized his shy, generous, lovable nature. He was always ready to give to the public need and did many kindnesses, always without ostentation and always with sincere modesty.
